Sensory Details: Allowing Your Reader to Feel, Taste, Hear, See, and Smell

1. Topic of your narrative _____
2. Read through the draft of your narrative. With a colored pencil, underline all the sensory detail in your narrative.
3. Identify parts of your narrative that would benefit from sensory details.

Detail from your Narrative	Rewritten With Sensory Detail
Ex: It was summer.	The hot, scorching sun caused sweat to trickle down my brow as we walked to the local pool.
Ex. He ran through the field.	His blonde hair bobbed like a marshmallow as he skipped through the tall golden shafts of the wheat field.
I heard a swimmer coming up behind me.	It felt like a shark was coming up behind me because of all the thrashing his strong strokes created.

4. Revise your narrative adding the sensory images above.
Goal: Try doubling the amount of sensory details from your prior draft.
