Name the Baby

(1) Millions of (2) animal babies are (3) born somewhere in the world every (4) single minute. (5) There are (6) special names given to these babies while (7) they're growing up. Some of (8) their specific names are well (9) known, such as baby (10) cattle are called calves. But in (11) addition, calves are the babies of antelope, hippos, whales, rhinos, and elephants. So, (12) Suppose your (13) friend says he saw a calf. You really don't have (14) enough (15) information to know exactly what he saw.

Some of the baby names make perfectly good (16) sense. For example, a baby chicken is a chick and a baby pig is a piglet. (17) However, it's (18) difficult to understand why a joey is a baby kangaroo. To make matters worse, the female and male baby names (19) may be different. A filly is a (20) young female horse, (21) although the (22) opposite sex is a colt. If (23) you're not sure of the sex, call it a foal, (24) because a foal is (25) either a baby (26) girl or boy horse. Can you write the baby names for a lion, bear, duck, deer, frog, swan, goat, and goose?
